Sonoma Valley Girl Scouts, from left, Katie Lacy, Caitlyn Hill, Taylor Curtis and Taylor Goss make fleece tie blankets for Project Linus, a nation-wide charity that provides handcrafted blankets to children in crisis. Proceeds from Girl Scout cookie sales funded the project, a joint effort between Junior Troop 10032 and Brownie Troop 10141. By working together to spread warmth and compassion to other children through Project Linus, the girls help “make the world a better place,” the mission of the Girl Scouts organization.
