

First Girl Scout: The Life of Juliette Gordon Low

Juliette Gordon Low—Daisy, as her friends and family called her—was a remarkable woman with ideas that were ahead of her time (1860-1927). She witnessed important eras in U.S. history, from the Civil War and Reconstruction to westward expansion to post-World War I. And she made history by founding the first national organization to bring girls from all backgrounds into the out-of-doors: the Girl Scouts of the USA.

Daisy created controversy by encouraging girls to prepare for both traditional homemaking responsibilities as well as for roles as professional women—in the arts, sciences, and business—and for active citizenship outside the home. The group she founded was open to girls from all races and ethnicities, and welcomed girls with disabilities at a time when they were usually excluded. Because of her vision and determination, the Girl Scouts still do all of these things—and more—today. It is a universally recognized organization that counts more than 3 million women and girls as members.
